SEVA FOOD BANK

For 15 years, Seva Food Bank, an initiative of the Sikhs Serving Canada Association, has been a trusted pillar of support in the fight against food insecurity, poverty, and economic inequality.

Through our operations in three sites – Malton, Wolfedale and Brampton – we ensure equitable access to safe, nutritious and culturally appropriate food to people experiencing or at risk of poverty. Beyond emergency food assistance, Seva empowers community members through educational workshops and skills training offered in its community kitchen —nurturing not just bodies, but futures.

OUR IMPACT

At Seva Food Bank, we're not just another charity -- we're a catalyst for change. We aim to combat hunger, promote self-reliance, and build a future where no one in our community goes hungry and they have the tools to thrive.

Our programs address food insecurity, poverty and social isolation, making a tangible difference in the lives of thousands.

We prioritize the needs of our clients, ensuring every dollar goes where it is needed most; through food, vital support services and programs tailored to empowering individuals and families.

FEEDING WITH COMPASSION

"I never imagined I'd need a food bank. But after losing my job and watching my savings disappear, I had to make impossible choices — like paying rent or feeding my family. That's when I found Seva. They didn't just hand me a food hamper, they welcomed me with kindness and zero judgment. It felt like someone finally saw me, not just my situation."

"As a father of two, it means everything to come home with fresh produce and staples so my kids can eat balanced meals. It means they can go to school with full stomachs and not feel different from their friends."

"I've seen Seva help newcomers, seniors, students, and families like mine. It's not just a place to get food, it's a lifeline, a community."
